Investor alert.

Selective Criminal Prosecution Used as Commercial Leverage by the National Bank of Uzbekistan.

A Confidential Briefing for International Financial Institutions, Correspondent Banks, and the Investor Community.

CONFIDENTIAL
MAY 6, 2026
PREPARED BY CENTRAL ASIA JUSTICE INITIATIVE

- A foreign investor's fintech venture in Uzbekistan.
- A state bank that files criminal charges during settlement talks.
- A CEO detained as leverage.

CAJI

Why this briefing exists

A fintech executive detained in Uzbekistan under circumstances that raise material concerns about rule of law and the investment climate.

The Situation

NBU simultaneously holds equity in a joint venture and filed the criminal complaint against its director during active settlement negotiations.

The Audience

IFI compliance officers, correspondent bank risk teams, eurobond investors, and rating agency analysts with NBU exposure.

Key Questions

01 Was criminal prosecution used as commercial leverage during settlement talks?

02 Does NBU's dual role as shareholder and complainant represent a conflict of interest?

03 What are the implications for international investors and correspondent banks?

BRIEFING HELD WITH

CAJI Board of Directors

or Legal Counsel — Keith Silverstein, Esq.

Prepared by Central Asia Justice Initiative

Investors are watching

"Investors doing due diligence on Uzbekistan are not only reading the Bloomberg coverage of new listings rules — they are also reading cases like this one, and the conclusions they draw from it affect allocation decisions."

— Matt Emma, International Business Times, 16 March 2026

11 days before the Hasanov arrest

NAMED WESTERN BYLINE

Bloomberg-adjacent commentary, attributed to a named editor in English-language press.

PRE-ARREST ANALYSIS

Published before Hasanov's 27 March 2026 detention — not a reaction to it.

SOLFY NAMED EXPLICITLY

The dispute is treated as the diagnostic case for institutional credibility.

CAJI

A fintech joint venture that became the center of an investor-state dispute with international implications.

SOLFY CA CAP TABLE

Poletaev (Solvy Cyprus) 50% Other 25% Full Stack Solution 20% NBU 5%

NBU is a 5% equity holder and the criminal complainant — see Slide 9 (Dual Role).

The Venture

Solfy CA LLC was established in Tashkent in June 2020 as a fintech joint venture. Maxim Poletaev held 50% beneficial interest via Solvy Cyprus Limited. NBU held 5%. Full Stack Solution held 20%.

The company launched a Buy Now, Pay Later installment card product in partnership with NBU, Uzbekistan's largest commercial bank (100% state-owned). NBU's investment committee authorized three capital infusions totaling over 17 billion soums. Senior retail management publicly endorsed the product. [Repost.uz]

Independent valuation by Bluestone: USD 42-52 million (valuation prepared by Bluestone in connection with the investor's anticipated ICSID claim; CAJI has not independently verified the methodology or assumptions).

The Collapse

Partnership terminated. NBU ended the relationship. Solfy was declared bankrupt. A contractual dispute over obligations under Agreement No. 289/37 was adjudicated in Uzbek civil courts (December 2024, May 2025).

Threat allegations reported. Public reporting has linked senior NBU leadership to communications the investor side characterizes as threatening. CAJI has not independently verified the identity of the individuals involved.

Criminal escalation. Rather than resolving the matter commercially, NBU filed a criminal complaint against Solfy's locally appointed director during active settlement negotiations.

CAJI

The sovereign's international face

NBU is not a peripheral institution. It is Uzbekistan's primary channel for international capital markets and development finance.

Institutional Identity

Founded 1991 as Uzbekistan's primary foreign trade bank. Largest commercial bank by total assets.

100% state-owned. Fund for Reconstruction & Development (59.25%) and Ministry of Economy & Finance (40.75%).

An Uzbek citizen held as human collateral — detained not for justice, but as leverage. This is not prosecution. It is state-sponsored coercion.

Why arrest is an excessive and disproportionate measure

Under Uzbek criminal procedure (Articles 236-243 CPC) and international standards, pre-trial detention is a measure of last resort.

PROPORTIONALITY SCALE (ARTICLES 236–243 CPC) — HASANOV

TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS — BAIL — HOUSE ARREST — PRE-TRIAL DETENTION

✗ no flight risk

✗ no evidence-tampering risk

✗ no enrichment

✗ contractual not criminal

01 No Flight Risk

Uzbek citizen with permanent residence, family ties, and no foreign passport. Travel restrictions or bail would suffice.

02 No Evidence Tampering Risk

All evidence is documentary — bank records, contracts, transfer statements — held by state institutions beyond Hasanov's reach.

03 No Personal Enrichment

No personal enrichment, offshore transfers, or asset concealment alleged. All funds flowed through documented corporate channels.

04 Contractual Dispute, Not Crime

Commercial disagreement over Contract 289/37, already adjudicated in civil courts. Criminalizing this violates ultima ratio.

05 Arrest During Negotiations

Charges filed one day after NBU rejected withdrawal of its complaint. Timing reveals a pressure tactic, not law enforcement.

! International Law Violation

Arbitrary detention in a commercial dispute violates ICCPR Article 9, ICCPR Article 14, and ECHR Article 5.

One arrest, many uncharged actors

This pattern is consistent with the use of criminal prosecution as commercial leverage, not genuine law enforcement.

- Foreign co-founders
  Directed corporate strategy from outside Uzbekistan
- NBU Investment Committee
  Authorized three capital tranches totaling 17+ billion soums
- NBU Compliance / Audit
  Functions responsible for oversight of capital allocation
- NBU Retail leadership
  Publicly endorsed the product in national media
- Full Stack principals
  20% shareholder; principals (Izrailbekov) uncharged
- Hasanov — Director
  Locally appointed; no personal enrichment alleged
  CHARGED

Sole defendant. The most replaceable individual in the corporate chain.

CENTRAL ASIA JUSTICE INITIATIVE

A contractual dispute repackaged as criminal prosecution

01

Allegation: Purposeless Squandering

Charges allege misappropriation of ~17 billion soums in charter capital. Yet the prosecution's own evidence describes operational expenditures: staff salaries, technology development, merchant acquisition. Normal costs of running a fintech startup.

02

Allegation: Unpaid Bank Rewards

Charges allege 14.9 billion soums in unpaid contractual rewards owed to NBU. These correspond to obligations under Agreement No. 289/37, already adjudicated in civil court rulings (December 2024, May 2025). The criminal complaint repackages a commercial dispute.

03

NBU Approved Every Tranche

NBU's own investment committee authorized every capital allocation it now characterizes as embezzlement. This sequence may indicate a material inconsistency between prior governance approvals and subsequent criminal characterization of the same expenditures.

Sources: criminal charging documents (case file), Tashkent commercial court rulings (Dec 2024, May 2025), NBU investment committee minutes — as characterized by the investor side.

CAJI

What NBU says vs. the documentary record

On 4 April 2026, NBU issued a two-paragraph public statement. We cite it in full and address each claim.

NBU CLAIMS

01 "adheres to the highest standards of integrity in all its commercial relationships"

02 "the priority of the Bank is the protection of its clients' interests"

03 "negotiations with Solfy and the related legal procedures are ongoing"

04 "inappropriate to comment on unsubstantiated allegations until the completion of this process"

05 "full compliance with all applicable laws and regulatory requirements"

DOCUMENTARY RECORD

01 NBU is a 5% Solfy CA shareholder litigating against its own portfolio company's director (cf. Slide 5).

02 Solfy CA — a contractual partner — is itself a client; NBU's "client interests" framing applies inversely.

03 NBU's own admission of parallel ongoing negotiations corroborates the simultaneity of settlement offer and arrest (Slide 7 Timeline).

04 "Allegations" cited include: arrest 27 March 2026, Article 167(3)(a) charges, Bluestone $42–52M valuation, Amsterdam & Partners retention. None are unsubstantiated.

05 Article 167(3)(a) selectivity, BIT obligations, and ICSID exposure are not addressed.

WHAT IS LEFT UNSAID

- The 27 March arrest of Hasanov.
- The Article 167(3)(a) charge.
- The 17 bn UZS / ~$1.5M figure.
- The 14.9 bn UZS / ~$1.2M unpaid contractual fee.
- The simultaneity of NBU's settlement offer and Hasanov's Friday-evening arrest.
- The Bluestone $42–52M valuation.
- The Mirsoatov family connection to the Tashkent prosecutor's office.
- The "termination of business relations" referenced by UzDaily.

- Fitch Bank Rating Criteria: Operating Environment assessment
- Moody's Scorecard Factor 1: Macro Profile institutional framework
- Potential disclosure implications for NBU financial statements
- Bondholder fiduciary analyses often consider counterparty governance risk

The Solfy case is not an isolated incident

A pattern of investor-hostile actions has been cited in reporting as a challenge to Uzbekistan's reform credibility

EXTRADITION

Shadmanov (2025)

Forcibly extradited from Dubai. ICIJ documented use of lobbyist to trigger sanctions inquiries. Lawyers describe prosecution as politically motivated.

SELECTIVE JUSTICE
